air arena at Airport for the first time this afternoon. He gave a crowd of 1 800 persons a feast of boxing which lasted eight rounds. Many women attended the show, most of them occupying seats at the ringside.

The champion traveled at a fast pace. Four sparring partners were taken on for sessions of two rounds each and not one of them escaped without a mark. Larry Williams, the blond Bridgeport heavyweigh, was the first sufferer and there are rumors that Larry is planning to leave the camp without giving notice.

It was Williams's own faurt that he received the worst mauling. The Bridgeporter stepped out in the second round and pasted Jack on the neck with a right. The crowd laughed. Of course a champion couldn't stand for jecularity at his expense and Jack crashed a left to Larry's eye that left a gash about two inches long.

Dempsey used his left almost entirely during the eight rounds and the only times he deviated from it he only times he deviated f ned out with a long right that car-schedule he has followed since opening camp, Georges Carpentier to-day boxed four rounds with his sparring partners and worked almost an hour in the gymnasium.

The challenger put in two rounds faster two with Italian Joe Gans. In these workouts Carpentier was given a chance to use his overhand knockout punch to advantage. However, he was careful not to hit his opponent too hard. He was on his toes throughout the four rounds. Several score men and boys, hidden in underbrush at the rear of the camp, witnessed the workout.

After the ring work, Georges punched the bag for ten minutes, worked on the mat for ten more, winding up with twenty-five minutes of shadow boxing. After his workout, Georges received a number of men and women, all residents of the neighborhood, sceking Georges' presence at their various dinner tables. The challenger refused ail offers with thanks. This trio, with Norman Brookes, is frequently compared to the ean, lank American who has stepped forward to hold the spotlight.

And when the comparisons start you get the usual differences of epinion. But the English are willing to admit that none of these could hit a tennis ball as hard as Tilden can, and that none of them had his extreme agility and speed. And certainly none of them had a greater variety of strokes. They don't believe that Tilden has the court generalship of Brookes or the Dohertys, so possibly no man can have every-
